

PRESIDENT HOPEFUL OF RAIL SETTLEMENT

ALLIANCE MAN KILLED WHEN
2 CARS CRASH

John G. Bailey, 25, Victim
In Georgetown Road
Collision

John G. Bailey, 25, of Alliance, was killed instantly at 11:15 p. m. Friday, on the Georgetown road when the car in which he was a passenger crashed into the rear of another stopped on the highway.

Three others were injured in the accident, which happened one and a third miles north of North Georgetown, the state highway patrol said.

Injured were: Kenneth Scott, 25, of Homeworth, bruises and shock. Doral Collins, 18, of Marlboro, lacerated head and face. Harold Akers, 29, of Alliance, bruised head and legs.

Skull Fractured
The patrol said Scott, driving alone, had stopped on the highway. The second car driven by Akers, hit the rear of the Scott car. Akers said he was going about 40 miles per hour.

Bailey died of a fractured skull, hitting his head on the dash board and windshield. The injured were taken to Alliance City hospital.

Both cars were badly damaged.

SALEM MEMORIAL DAY PLANS BEGUN

Steps For Observance Are Taken By Patriotic Organizations

Preliminary plans for Salem's Memorial day observance were made when representatives of patriotic organizations met Friday evening in G. A. R. hall.

An organization was effected with George E. Votaw president, and H. D. Huttenhower and C. E. Triem, secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Wade Leary, president of Charles H. Carey post, American Legion, was named president of the day, while Rex Reich of the Amvets, was appointed marshal.

Mrs. J. E. Bentley and Miss Nina Bentley, members of the Sons of Union Veterans' auxiliary, compose a committee to secure a speaker for the Hope cemetery exercises.

Follow Same Pattern.
As has been the custom in past years, Allen Reynolds post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will arrange a program for the Grandview cemetery service.

The American Legion Quaker City and Salem High school bands will participate in the parades. Salem school children and Girl Scouts will also have part, while Boy Scouts will serve as traffic aides.

While plans were discussed for having a unified service at Reilly field, no definite action was taken. However, this plan may be adopted in the future.

Final arrangements will be completed at a meeting Friday evening, May 21, in the G. A. R. hall.

Kathryn Lottman and Edith Coccia, members of Gold Star auxiliary, and Robert Carpenter of Allen Reynolds post will be in charge of transportation and chairs for the cemetery.

Hold Eleventh-Hour Negotiations to Avert Rail Strike

John R. Steelman, the president's labor aide... he's playing a leading role in the capital.

Switchmen's A. J. Glover... Firemen's David B. Robertson... Engineers' Alvanley Johnston.

CHIEF FIGURES IN RAIL STRIKE negotiations underway in Washington are John R. Steelman, the president's labor assistant, who is one of the main cogs in last-minute attempts to avert a nationwide railroad strike, and heads of three big unions which set

May 11 as the walkout date: A. J. Glover, president Switchmen's union; David B. Robertson, president Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers; Alvanley Johnston, grand chief Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. (International)

RAIN FAILS TO STOP OBERLIN'S
GOP CONVENTION

(By Associated Press)
OBERLIN, May 8—Charley and Tommy—two imported "Republican" elephants—kept warm today despite the chill spring air as the first heated balloting blasts arose from Oberlin college's traditional mock G. O. P. convention.

Part of the official trappings of the 88-year-old convocation, which has been right nine times since 1880 in picking the G. O. P. presidential nominee, the elephants were "campaign" signs supporting Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio. They also boosted E. R. P.—the "elephant recovery program."

Floats In Rain
Floats paraded in the convention opening yesterday heralding the candidacy of Sen. Vandenberg, Harold E. Stassen, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and other potential Republican presidential nominees.

The float of the Ohio delegation was awarded first prize by an "impartial" panel of judges.

A downpour of rain failed to stifle the spirits of the student "electors" as Sen. H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey delivered the keynote address of the 22nd Oberlin convention.

Sen. Smith asserted the Democratic New Deal form of planning had tended to "separate rather than to unite the nation."

"For many years the federal government has steadily encroached on what are properly state sources of tax money," said the New Jersey Republican.

"The end product has been that the state have only left to themselves tax fields that are completely inadequate to produce the revenues needed to assume their responsibilities."

The keynote speaker called for a "complete overhaul of our tax system," and declared:

"We have moved in the course of a relatively few years from economic control of our national life by big government. Now we face the task of finding the road back to a better balanced expression of our free enterprise system."

Gov. Thomas J. Herbert lauded the interest of the student-delegates in political affairs, and said "you really do demonstrate your practical knowledge of government."

Salem Man's Painting
In Butler Art Exhibit

The annual spring salon for artists within a 25-mile radius of Youngstown opened Friday at Butler Art Institute where it will continue through June 20.

This year's exhibit which was selected by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Olmes of the Canton Art Institute is definitely modern in character with emphasis on brilliant color combinations. The oil section is the strongest in the show containing 53 items, most of which are professional in character. The top awards in this section went to Robert Hansen and George Breckner, Jr., both of Youngstown.

A grand total of 132 works is on exhibition in the south galleries of the museum. The Institute is open daily from 1 to 5 and admission is free.

Arthur H. Vaughan of Salem is represented in the show with an oil.

Gilda, Famed "Shimmy Gal"
Of Years Ago, Prom Toast

(By Associated Press)
STERLING, Colo., May 8—Gilda Gray, the toast of the twenties for her "shimmy," was the toast of Sterling today. Part of Sterling any-

how. She defied the school board and went to the High School Junior-Senior prom last night. And did the kids love it. Almost as much as their—and other—Dad's liked Gilda's famed dance.

The students' enthusiasm wasn't shared by all their parents. "We don't need this kind of publicity," said one disapproving mother as she left the dance.

For Gilda, though, it was a distinct triumph. She came as guest of honor, not as a dancer, but she did break down and dance one fox-trot with Carl A. Collins, the assistant principal who invited her.

"It's a wonderful thing," she said as the boys and girls flocked around her for autographs.

Dressed decorously in a gold and gray gown and ermine wrap, Gilda didn't look her years—which she declined to reveal. Some records show she was born in Poland in October 1897. Her blonde hair was upswept.

Dr. J. H. Jackson, school board president, who called the invitation ill-advised, wasn't there.

"The dance was held at the Elks hall. Around the room are the pictures of past exalted rulers. Dr. Jackson is one of them. During the afternoon, someone draped his picture with crepe. But the crepe was taken down before the dance."

Gilda said she cried when she heard the school board had cancelled her bid to the prom. But there were no tears in her eyes last night. Only stardust. She put on all her charm and captivated the boys.

"I wish I was young so I could come to the prom with a good-looking fellow like you," she said to one boy.

R. J. Carroll, superintendent of schools, wasn't too captivated, though. Collins asked him to lead the grand march with Gilda, but Carroll declined.

OHIO PLANTS ON MUNITIONS LIST

WASHINGTON, May 8—Several Ohio industries are among 11 surplus war plants listed by the munitions board for possible reconversion in case of an emergency.

The board said yesterday the War Assets Administration has been asked to use the national security clause in sales contracts for the plants.

The clause holds that productive capacity of the plant will not be changed to prevent reconversion. The plants include: Aluminum Company of America at Newark; Barium Stainless Steel Co., Lorain; Copperweld Steel Co., at Warren; Ohio Steel Foundry Co., Lima; Republic Steel Corp. at Warren and Timken Roller Bearing Co. at Columbus.

LISBON, May 8—Oliver Kuhn of Stark county was elected president of the joint board of commissioners of the Fairmount Children's home at a meeting at the home Friday evening.

He will succeed Kim Crawford of Columbiana county.

John Smith of Columbiana county was elected vice president and Mrs. Esther Sexton was re-elected secretary.

President 'Healthy'
On 64th Birthday

WASHINGTON, May 8—President Truman observed his 64th birthday today with his attention on the threatened rail strike—and its possible effect on his cross-country travel plans.

His transcontinental talking tour calls for the use of the special presidential train—the last word in railroad equipment.

Unless the White House succeeds in its efforts to avert the rail walkout Tuesday, Truman, like millions of other citizens, may have to alter his travel plans. In the case he could use the presidential plane—but that would eliminate his scheduled rear platform appearances on the June trip to the west coast.

The President will take time out today to attend a birthday party arranged by his staff. They invited him to a special luncheon—prepared in the White House basement kitchen.

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross and White House Physician Brig. General Wallace H. Graham, pronounced the chief executive in top shape.

Round-up of Strike
Effects, Threats

By The Associated Press
Major developments today in the nation's top labor disputes:

Railroads (Effects)—All segments of industry and business would feel the impact of the threatened strike, with damages expected to mount into the millions. The walkout would make idle millions of workers in scores of industries. Carriers have issued orders on handling of new shipments of perishables, poultry or livestock, with about 60 roads to have them in effect over the weekend. Airplane and bus companies plan extra service to handle the overflow rush of passenger and freight business.

Meat—CIO packinghouse workers in nine cities have set strike dates to join 100,000 CIO meat workers on strike for eight weeks. Government efforts to have union and four major packers resume wage negotiations in Chicago today appeared to have failed. Two packers said they would not attend the meetings and the other two said they were not invited. New strikes of stock-handlers were called in Chicago next Tuesday and in six other major livestock centers next Friday.

A strike date also was set for next Tuesday by packinghouse workers in two Iowa cities.

Auto—Federal conciliators continued their efforts to head off the threatened strike next Wednesday of 75,000 CIO United Auto Workers at 16 Chrysler Corp. plants. The union broke off negotiations with the company on its demand for a 30-cent hourly wage increase.

Believe Russians
May Be Ready For Showdown With U.S.

By HOWARD DOBSON

WASHINGTON, May 8—A congressional committee said today it believes "the Soviet Union may now be willing to risk a showdown with the United States."

To forestall such a "rash decision" by Russian leaders, the house armed services committee said, this country should strengthen its ground and sea forces through a manpower draft. And it added:

"A 70-group air force is not a substitute for Selective Service."

Both the senate and house have approved expanding the nation's air arm from 55 to 70 groups over the next five years. But as yet they have taken no action on President Truman's request for a temporary draft and universal military training.

Minority Report Issued
The house group's formal report—accompanied by a stinging dissent by a five-man minority—was issued as senate Republican leaders confirmed the top priority they have given all defense legislation between now and the June 19 adjournment date.

The committee majority recommended prompt passage of a bill by Chairman Andrews (R-NY) to draft men from 19 through 25 for two years' service. The committee approved the measure 28 to 5 last Monday.

The majority report's warning of possible Russian showdown intentions coincided with a statement by Gen. Jonathan Wainwright that the Russians would launch an all-out war only as a "last resort."

In a letter to Republican congressional leaders urging the return of Gen. Douglas MacArthur to testify on preparedness plans, Wainwright said:

"The (MacArthur) knows only too well that the present enemies of United States and our world desire first to accomplish their objective of the destruction of our constitutional democracy by means of revolution and civil war."

"Their last resort only would be real war from the land, sea and air."

The Bataan hero, now retired, said nothing to indicate he feels the Russians are ready for such action.

But the house committee said recent Soviet moves in Europe—such as the Communist victory in Czechoslovakia—have convinced it that "the Soviet union may now be willing to risk a showdown on the assumption that the future can bring only a worsening of the Soviet position."

This drew a sharp retort from the minority headed by Rep. Short (R-Mo.).

Calls It War Program
"This is a program for war," declared the five-man dissenting group. "We do not believe that a sound and adequate defense system requires the police-state methods of compulsion."

Passage of the Andrews bill, their report said, "would be one of the most tragic errors which could be committed by congress," and would be interpreted "by all nations of the world to mean that this country expects war."

Meanwhile, the senate armed services committee scheduled a vote

Monday on its own draft bill, which would call in 18-year-olds for a year of training. This plan has the endorsement of President Truman and Secretary of Defense Forrestal.

Republican leaders in the house and senate have not reached any agreement on draft legislation. Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said yesterday the senate majority policy committee will not discuss the draft until a bill has been recommended by the armed services committee.

Speaker Martin (R-Mass.) has not expressed his opinion of the Andrews bill, but has predicted it will pass the house without much trouble.

PLAN POSTAL CELEBRATION

'Air Mail Week' Celebration Here To Include Banquet

Salem postoffice officials will join with the Junior Chamber of Commerce and other service clubs in observance of "National Air Mail Week," May 15-21, it was announced today.

Feature of the week will be a banquet at the Memorial building on Thursday evening, May 20.

The Jaycees, in charge of the banquet, are extending invitations to the other Salem service clubs to take part in the celebration. Postmaster A. E. Beardmore is inviting postmasters and postal employees throughout the district. In addition, the Jaycees are planning to make the affair their annual "Bosses Night Dinner."

Two Will Speak
C. R. Helmick, chief, operational section of the Air Postal Transport, will represent the U. S. Post Office department as a guest speaker.

Another speaker will be William G. Henry, manager of Capital Airlines air mail and express division in Washington, D. C.

They will outline the operation and progress of the air mail service in the country.

A musical program is also being arranged.

The committee in charge of the banquet is headed by Alroy Bloomberg and included James Jackson, Robert Baughman and Robert Whitehill of the Jaycees and Dwight Getz and Ray Reich of the postoffice force.

More details for the week's activities will be announced later.

Latest Radio Pot
Contains $20,000

HOLLYWOOD, May 8—The latest radio jackpot winner is Mrs. Ward S. George, wife of a disabled Oregon war veteran.

Mrs. George, 32, of Lebanon, Ore., took the $20,000 prize offered by NBC's "People Are Funny" last night for the correct answer—Cairo, Egypt—to a riddle that had withstood guesses for eight weeks.

She bagged a three-bedroom house, $4,600 in furnishings, a 1948 sedan, a $2,000 lot in Los Angeles county, and a pick of a job here.

Victory was particularly welcome to Mrs. George, she said, because her husband has needed to come to California for his health. They had been working in a Lebanon nursery.

The program's riddle read: "Old Chief Wind Bag, gloomy and gay; I'm one over others that lie in decay. Where can I be found? Upon low ground. That's all, that's all I will say."

Mrs. George said she knew Cairo lies on low ground.

Sales In Department
Stores Climb Again

CLEVELAND, May 8—Department store sales in the Fourth Federal district continued their upward swing last week, a report issued today showed.

Sales reached the highest level since the peak of Easter trade with an increase of 11 per cent over the same week a year ago and 28 per cent above the same week two years ago.

The aggregate dollar volume of sales in the four week period ended May 1 was 10 per cent higher than last year.

POSTPONEMENT
DENIED; MEET
WITH OWNERS

Can't Discuss Conferences, Ross Says; Steelman May Call Leaders

BY NORMAN WALKER
WASHINGTON, May 8 — The White House renewed its effort today to avert the nationwide railroad strike set for Tuesday morning. Railroad operators were called to meet with Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman and there was a "possibility" that union leaders might be summoned later.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters:

"The President remains always hopeful that a settlement can be reached."

Denies Postponement
He denied reports that President Truman now plans to ask a 20-day strike postponement, and said he could not comment on whether Steelman has any specific settlement proposal to make.

Four spokesmen for the rail carriers had a mid-day engagement with Steelman. Truman's labor trouble shooter. They are Daniel P. Lewis, H. A. Enoch and C. D. Mackay, chairman of the western, eastern and southeastern carrier's conference committees respectively; and W. T. Farley, president of the Association of American Railroads.

Ross said he could not discuss this conference in detail.

"We are trying to serve the public interest and avert this strike," he said. "We can't conduct parleys like this in a gold fish bowl."

The White House spokesman said he does not know whether Steelman might keep the negotiations going through tomorrow.

Informants had reported that the 20-day delay might be asked if no agreement is reached by the May 11 deadline between the railroads and three labor unions in their six-months old dispute.

Government seizure of the railroads was expected only if everything else failed.

Impose Embargo Orders
As settlement efforts continued, six railroads imposed embargo orders on foods, poultry and livestock. At least 64 other lines planned the same step to avoid spoilage of strike-stranded cargo.

Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman called management negotiators into private conference and it was indicated he also will meet again with heads of the three rail brotherhoods before the Tuesday strike deadline.

Steelman's settlement efforts so far have been fruitless.

Dewey Refuses To Debate With Stassen

MEDFORD, Ore., May 8 — Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York turned his back again today on a challenge from Harold E. Stassen to debate issues from the same platform in Oregon.

The challenge came on a radio program (Mutual's "Meet The Press") last night in which Stassen said he was willing to fly to Oregon for the debate.

Dewey himself had no comment, but his aides made it clear a debate was not in prospect. They said there was not even a plan for Dewey to meet his rival for Oregon's Republican vote.

Stassen, the only other G.O.P. entry for Oregon's 12 presidential delegates in the May 21 primary, got a similar rebuff when he proposed a debate earlier.

The two are expected to be in the state at the same time later. Stassen has announced he will return May 17. Dewey is expected to be here until polls open.

Dewey moved into eastern Oregon today after a speech here urging stronger national defenses.

Aid College Graduates
In Obtaining Employment

College graduates who qualify for available job openings will be able to contact prospective employers anywhere in the state within a matter of hours under the Ohio State Employment Service's new expanded college placement program. Frank J. Colopy, Bureau of Unemployment Compensation administrator, reported today.

The Employment Service will use a state-wide telephone hook-up with all of its 91 local offices when speed is essential in bringing an employer and qualified job applicant together.

Economic Statesmanship

Management is resisting a third round of wage increases on the sound assumption that somebody must stop wage-price inflation lest everybody share the consequences of an unchecked boom-and-bust cycle.

If resistance hardens into a general policy, as seems likely, an epidemic of strikes will follow, unless union leadership abandons its apparent belief that wage rates must and can go up indefinitely. The union argument that this can be done by paying wage increases out of profits doesn't hold water. The argument originates in hostility to the economic system that makes high wages possible, not in the arithmetic of business management.

The fact is that both business management and union management are dealing with consumers. Their job is to give consumers what they need and want at a price they can afford to pay.

High prices resulting from wage boosts already have gone past the point of diminishing returns in some lines. Management knows that inventories have been piling up in these lines because the price is too stiff for potential consumers. If union leadership doesn't know the same thing it is failing to keep it self informed.

After the wage-price boom collapsed in the late 20's because too many potential consumers were forced out of the market by prices they couldn't afford to pay there was an interval of deep demorse. It was obvious that the country needed a new kind of economic statesmanship to save itself from violent boom-bust fluctuations in the business cycle.

Management, in some quarters, is showing its awareness of the long-range consequences of shortsighted actions. Union leadership, in some quarters, is showing similar awareness, though it is tragically handicapped by the tradition that wage rates must rise endlessly in terms of dollars even though the result is a decline in purchasing power.

The question is whether there will be enough economic statesmanship to avert another period of deep remorse after another boom-bust fluctuation. Overproduction is still a danger in an economy that depends on the welfare of its consumers. Whether it's called that or underconsumption, which it really is, management is responsible for keeping it from happening—and management in these times includes the men who manage the affairs of labor unions.

'Movement of People'

Winston Churchill's greatest contribution to the thinking of his time has been the ability to see what was possible and to stimulate men to achieve it. This has been accompanied by a corresponding ability to see what was impossible and to warn men against it.

His choice of the phrase "a Council of Europe shows the depth of his thought. In the past, attempts to create European federation have been made by governments and religions. Sometimes the attempts were favorable to the hopes and aspirations of the people, sometimes they weren't. But favorable or unfavorable, they lacked a basis of popular consent. This is the danger that Mr. Churchill warns against in 1948.

"We aim at the eventual participation of all the people throughout the continent whose society and way of life are not in discord with the charter of human rights and the sincere expression of free democracy," he has told the 22-nation forum at The Hague, speaking as its honorary chairman. "We welcome any country where the people own the government, and not the government the people."

The Rockefeller foundation said in its recent annual report that it had found everywhere in Europe a sincere desire among people to lift the burden of nationalistic wars from their shoulders. They are tired of governments and ideologies that betray their interests. The foundation of peace exists in the minds of people; its existence is denied in the minds of few men whose ambition runs contrary to the people's interests.

The Middle East Balkans

Contrary to statements forthcoming from the Arab league, the forces arrayed against the Jews in Palestine aren't united. The Arab league is a loosely-knit confederation of states full of personal enmities and irreconcilable elements. Old feuds smolder there. Pashas who owed allegiance to Hitler or to Vichy France warily eye those who cast their lot with the Allies.

Trans-Jordan's King Abdullah is at sword's point with King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia who robbed Abdullah's family of its holdings in Hejaz. The former mufti of Jerusalem is allied with Ibn Saud and thus has the enmity of all who support Abdullah. Fawzi El Kawukli, head of the Arab fighting forces in Palestine, was Hitler's errand boy in the Middle East and is in league with the mufti against Abdullah.

States and rival leaders are hesitant about committing too much strength to the army lest they become fair game for their Arab rivals. The Arab league is as full of dissensions and schisms as the Balkans were in the days when Montenegro, Serbia, Herzegovina and other little feudalisms were engaged in their futile plottings and scufflings.

Why The Secrecy?

Congressional hearings on the ERP received the fullest publicity and included all shades of opinion. But now the House Ways and Means Committee is holding closed meetings on extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, a subject inevitably bound close to European and world recovery.

This means not only that public and press are barred from the hearings, but that the committee can hear only such witnesses as it wants and ask them only such questions as they choose, without outside question or comment. This seems neither consistent nor in the public interest. We hope that the committee may see fit to change its mind and open up the hearings.

The Stars Say
BY GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, May 9

Sunday's astrological forecast is a variable one, depending largely upon the manner in which opportunity and circumstances are directed or manipulated.

With prospect of pleasant and productive relations with those in places of power, influence and good will it is possible to enjoy preferment, honors and favors along cherished lines.

However, a disposition to rash, hasty and intemperate or emotional acts, rushing into danger and difficulties could negate the most auspicious prospects. Shun criticism, strife and accident.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which the final issues depend upon the sagacity, sound objectives and ability to secure approbation, good will and substantial aid and collaboration from superiors, employers and others in high places.

All this could be forfeited by reckless, intemperate, impulsive and over-energetic urges, indulgences and conduct. Self-restraint, calmly-directed initiative executive ability could prove highly productive and pleasant, in all contracts.

Those whose birthday it is have opportunity for advancement, preferment, cooperation from superiors, if they will "put the brakes on" over-energetic impulses, inflated objectives and conduct. Early discipline could be effective.

For Monday, May 10

Monday's horoscope holds augury by an unusual and intriguing state of affairs, in which all relationships and activities should be submitted to wise and careful scrutiny for the fulfillment of the happiest and most enduring ideals, dreams and aspirations.

An undercurrent of the intangible, subtle and elusive accents, the need of careful consideration, wise decisions and a practical approach to exceptional opportunities.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy an exceptionally pleasant and productive year, albeit the unusual, irregular, subtle and intriguing around.

An undertone of the curious, obscure, intangible and idealistic demands that the mind be utilized in making decisions. Intuitions aid a shrewd and sagacious analysis to enhance happiness and fruition in love, work, play and creative efforts.

A child born on this day may be an idealist, with emotional or spiritual urges dominant. Its intellect is also stimulated to constructive ideas and realistic accomplishment. Love may be a joyous sequence in a happy life.

A pound of phosphorus will tip a million matches—just about enough for a nickel cigar.

We constantly read about people digging up prehistoric stuff everywhere—and all we have to offer are a number of street cars.

Argument Over Who Won In Ohio May Be Endless, But Actual Result Means Little

BY H. H. DAUGHERTY

COLUMBUS, May 8—All except the practical politicians probably will be arguing for the next decade whether Ohio Republicans' favorite son, Sen. Robert A. Taft, or Minnnesota's former Gov. Harold E. Stassen, who lost in their battle for 23 of this state's G. O. P. presidential delegates.

The practical politicians, viewing the Philadelphia convention only in terms of votes for the various presidential candidates, will scarcely raise their eyebrows over the nine votes that Stassen took from Taft in Ohio. If at any time either Taft or Stassen needs only nine votes for the nomination as the roll is being called at Philadelphia, they probably will get them before the results are announced, by delegations scrambling to get on the band wagon.

Taft Wins Popular Vote

For those who like to argue over election results it might be well to point out that on Stassen's own method of calculation, Taft was the popular choice of Ohio voters to the tune of 51,000 votes.

Stassen during his Ohio campaign made public his own method for calculating his and Taft's comparative strength among Ohio voters. He said the vote for his lone delegate at-large should be compared with the average vote for the nine Taft delegate-at-large candidates.

The high of the Taft delegate slate was Senator W. Bricker with 424,000 votes and the low man, former State Chairman Ed D. Schorr had 342,000. The average for the nine delegates was 375,000.

Stassen's lone delegate-at-large candidate, Carrington T. Marshall, received 324,000 votes or 51,000 less than the average of the nine Taft delegates.

Another point for argument is the effectiveness of party organization in a primary battle. Looking at the Democratic side, the picture presented is one of virtually complete impotency as reflected in the vote for governor.

Former Gov. Frank J. Lausche, virtually devoid of organization support, won a two-and-a-half to one victory over former Cleveland Mayor Ray T. Miller, who boasted virtually complete organization support throughout the state. Lausche's vote was 332,000 to 138,000 for Miller.

Present Opposite View

The Republican picture presents almost the opposite results in the battle between Taft and Stassen in the contest for presidential delegates. Here Taft had the support of the state and county organizations which generally are conceded as having done effective work in behalf of Taft delegates notwithstanding the loss of nine Taft delegates in the various contested districts.

All the Stassen delegates were obtained in the heavy industrial areas where organized labor is strong and was generally listed as opposed to Taft because of the Taft-Hartley labor law. Thus much of the Taft opposition in those districts probably was beyond the pale of any political party organization.

But just how potent is the labor union vote in an election also may be raised for argument. The CIO gave its endorsement to Miller in the Democratic gubernatorial race, and Miller was virtually snowed under by former Governor Lausche.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

A Cough Should Be Diagnosed

BY HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
NOWADAYS, when so many people smoke, there is a tendency to regard every cough as simply due to too many cigarettes. This is a bad thought because it often means neglect of coughing which signals some really serious disorder.

There are many different types of coughing and these are so distinctive that years ago, when modern methods of diagnosis were not available, doctors relied heavily on the mere sound of the cough to tell them what was wrong. For example, a trassy cough indicates swelling of the aorta, the great artery coming from the heart. Its enlargement causes pressure on the windpipe and this, in turn, stimulates the coughing attack.

Croupy Cough
A croupy cough is commonly associated with conditions which produce swellings of the larynx or voicebox.

Coughing, in attacks, may mean whooping cough or some other condition which produces an excessive amount of secretion in the windpipe and the tubes in the lungs known as the bronchi.

A dry cough, on the other hand, means, as a rule, that an excessive amount of secretion is not present. Tumor or cancer of the lungs frequently produces a cough of this type.

Cause Must Be Found

Since coughing is only a symptom, it cannot be treated properly until the cause is found. It is often one of the important signs in the common everyday infections of the respiratory tract. It is nearly always present in tuberculosis of the lung, lung abscess and pneumonia, and we all must remember that serious lung tumors also cause coughing.

It is true as I said earlier, that coughing is common among excessive smokers but it is never safe to assume that a persistent cough is due to this cause alone. Hence, when a patient who smokes complains of coughing, there is need for a thorough study to determine if the coughing is due to the smoking or to some other disturbance. Smoker's cough usually occurs in the morning, though it may be present throughout the day. It is often accompanied by gagging because of the thick secretions present in the throat.

Certain occupations require that the worker be exposed to dust and fumes which may also have a noticeable effect on the lining membranes of the breathing organs to cause coughing attacks.

Sometimes coughing may be produced by conditions outside of the breathing organs. Irritation of the outer ear canal may bring about coughing attacks, and coughing may be a symptom of hard-packed wax in the ear. Of course, inflammation of the nose and throat, as well as infection of the nasal sinuses, are all associated with coughing.

The Nation Today

BY JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Marshall says the "keystone" of our foreign policy is the Reciprocal Trade Agreements act.

That policy right now is to shove the world toward prosperity and at the same time stop the spread of Communism.

Because this country is the most prosperous, and has the most at stake in stopping Communism, it has taken the leadership in world trade.

The reciprocal Trade Agreements act means simply: We'll let another country sell certain of its goods here by lowering our import taxes on them if that country does the same for some of our goods.

The act was first passed in 1934. Congress has renewed it four times since then. It dies June 12 unless renewed again.

UNDER THE ACT the state department can do the tariff-lowering without any say-so from congress.

SOME Republicans want to kill the act or at least change it so congress can have more to say about what agreements can be made.

Under the act, as it is, this country has agreements with 41 other nations.

Some of those agreements were made in 1947 in Geneva, Switzerland, when this country and 22 others worked out deals aimed at better world trade.

The U. S. representatives based their work on the Reciprocal Trade Agreements act.

This Geneva conference was just one of the steps the United States has taken toward stepping up world trade.

Back in 1945 this country suggested setting up an International Trade Organization (ITO) as part of the United Nations.

Several years' work went into this idea. Starting last fall this country and others met at Havana, Cuba.

They completed their job in March, 1948. And 54 nations, including ours, signed an agreement to set up ITO.

(Nevertheless, this country won't become part of ITO unless congress approves. It's not expected to get around to this until next year.)

One of the cornerstones in the ITO charter is the Reciprocal Trade Agreements act.

AND THAT ACT is also wrapped up in this country's European Recovery plan—called the Marshall plan—for helping 16 European nations get back on their feet over the next four years.

Since 1934—according to the U. S. Tariff commission—our tariffs have been cut about 47 percent.

(Only about 40 percent of the goods imported into this country have tariffs on them.)

Congress, before the act dies June 12, can do this with it:

1. Kill it. (This is not likely.)

2. Extend it. (President Truman wants it extended three years. Congress may extend it only one and then check on it again next year.)

3. Extend it but make changes in it.

So the big question is: If the act is changed—for example, to give congress a stronger voice in it—will those changes help or hurt the act and what it's supposed to do?

Secretary Marshall said a "serious weakening" of the act would "almost certainly" make other nations think we're quitting as leaders of world trade.

Marshall made his statement yesterday to a house ways and means subcommittee. That subcommittee is headed by Rep. Gearhart, California Republican, one of the strongest critics of the act.

Newsmen To Meet

COLUMBUS, May 8 — The first postwar meeting of the Blue Pen club, an organization of deskmen on Ohio daily newspapers, will meet at Ohio State university May 16.

Murray Powers, Akron Beacon Journal news editor, and Basil I. Walters, Knight newspapers executive editor, are listed as speakers.

Too Many Rats and Cats

CORCORAN, Cal. — Elmo Weir underestimated the power of the press. He found that rats were overrunning his mill and issued a plea through San Joaquin valley reporters for cats. Soon he had received over thirty cats. Weir has now issued a second plea, "no more cats, please."

Boyle's COLUMN

BY HAL BOYLE
CUSTER, S. D.—The most controversial figure in the Black hills today is a 500-foot-tall dream in a man's head.

The head that holds the dream is on the shoulders of Korczak Ziolkowski, Boston-born sculptor and war veteran.

The figure in the dream is a gigantic memorial statue of Crazy Horse, famous Sioux warrior—a statue so huge 2,000 people could stand on the chief's outflung arm.

To make his dream come true Ziolkowski must carve it out himself from thunderhead mountain.

And that is what is causing the controversy. These "magic mountains" were once sacred ground to the Sioux. Today they are less venerated but no less loved by the white visitors who have turned the Black hills into a year-round vacation land.

THE HAVE stocked the area with wild game—pheasant, deer, elk, buffalo, Beaver—and want to keep it fresh and unspoiled.

For this reason many grumbled when Gutzon Borglum conceived the Mount Rushmore memorial. Most are glad now he carried it out.

The great shrine carrying the faces of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Teddy Roosevelt draws 6,000 tourist visitors a day during the summer. The people of South Dakota are proud of it.

The Crazy Horse monument proposal, however, is meeting perhaps even sturdier criticism than did Borglum's Rushmore project.

"We don't want to turn our Black hills into a sculptor's gallery," said one elderly resident.

Behind the objection also is a feeling that the Indian memorial might dwarf Rushmore, which is about twenty miles away. Others think, on the other hand, it would serve as a twin drawing card for tourists.

Few of those who question Ziolkowski's plan question his competency—or his courage. His head of Paderewski was voted by spectators as the most popular sculptural exhibit at the New York World's fair. He also worked for a short time with Borglum on Mount Rushmore.

I went to see Ziolkowski at the spacious wooden lodge he designed and built himself near Thunderhead mountain.

The sculptor is 39, fiery, boyish-headed mountain.

and determined. His hair is shaggy spreads a dark moustache. He still and tousled; his friendly grin wears the old GI boots he wore overseas. He likes to talk about his Crazy Horse memorial, and loves to bat down arguments against it.

"It has cost me $81,000 so far—and I haven't put my chisel to stone," he said cheerfully. "But I'll finish it if it takes 30 years."

Ziolkowski said he was first asked in 1939 by Chief Henry Standing Bear to carve the memorial because "we want the white man to know the red man had heroes, too."

"So I came out here and bought a mountain," smiled the sculptor. It was Standing Bear also who insisted that the memorial—symbol of the proud Sioux nation's vanished glory—be to Crazy Horse, the great warrior chief who preferred death to life as a reservation Indian.

Crazy Horse is to the Sioux what George Washington might have been to the American people if Washington had lost his war and been treacherously slain.

The proposed monument shows him, arm flung forward imperiously, hair streaming in the wind, as he rode into battle astride the stallion that gave him his name. The mountain site is 500 feet tall, 900 feet long.

"I would like to have a Sioux museum and an Indian village at the base of the monument to show the old Sioux culture," said Ziolkowski. He said that with the help of promised Indian helpers he hoped to finance construction through tourist revenue. The immediate problem is to obtain funds for initial equipment.

"I may be bald and wearing a long beard when you come again," Ziolkowski smiled, "but this monument to the Indian—it will be here forever."

Completed, it would make the Sphinx look like an oversized mouse.

BEHIND THE SCENES WITH MULLINS

One of a series of advertisements about American industrial teamwork in action.

8615 members of the MULLINS family toured the Warren and Salem plants the last two Sundays

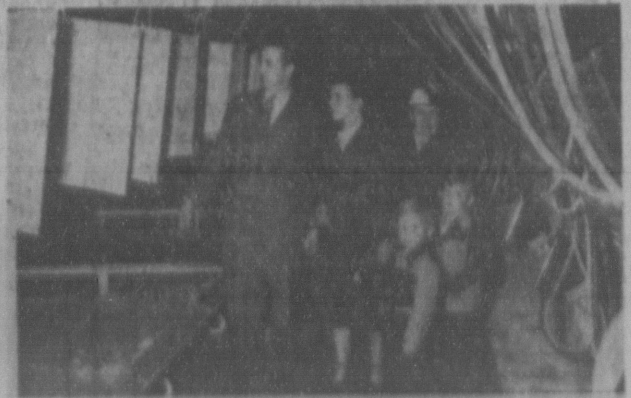

Mullins employees brought members of their families to the Warren plant Sunday afternoon, April 25, and showed them how Youngstown Kitchens are made. Among the many interesting features was a complete showing of Mullins products, viewed by 4145 people.

The Open House at Salem on Sunday afternoon, May 2, drew 4470 guests. Representative machines were set up and many were in operation. Displays and signs, too, helped to make the tour entertaining, understandable, educational. A lot of free "Coke" was consumed.

Plants at Salem and Warren

This is the first time for many years that Mullins people have been able to bring their families to the plants and show them where they work and what they make. During the war necessary security restrictions made such tours impractical, and since then we've been so torn up installing and setting up new and better machines that people couldn't have seen too much ... An unusual feature of the two Open House afternoons was the fact that Mullins people could guide their guests where and how they pleased, stopping as long as they wished at any point. The plants were busy from starting time at 1 o'clock until the last guests left at 6. Mullins Manufacturing Corporation is highly pleased that so many Mullins people and their families, in both Salem and Warren, came to Open House.

260 Hear Guest Speaker At Presbyterian Program

Mrs. Raymond Kulow of Hubbard, guest speaker Friday evening to 260 mothers and daughters in the Presbyterian church, brought women of the Bible to life, introducing them through her theme, "Have You Ever Met These People?"

The party, sponsored by the Women's association, was held in the chapel in a setting of palms, lilies, pansies, tulips and dogwood blossoms.

Mrs. Gertrude Stewart, president, welcomed the guests, while Mrs. J. C. Pottorf, program chairman and mistress of ceremonies introduced

Emmanuel Group Enjoys Banquet

Daughters of Emmanuel of the Emmanuel Lutheran church held their biggest social affair of the season when they sponsored a Mother-Daughter banquet Thursday evening at the church.

Mrs. John Bauman, president, welcomed 250 guests, and also led the group singing, in the place of Miss Mary Ratscher, who was unable to attend on account of illness.

The table was beautifully trimmed with lilies and tulips and lighted with tall white tapers in crystal holders. Unique favors, a mother-daughter design in pastel shades, also served as a program cover and marked each place.

Miss Ruth Winkler responded to a toast made to the daughters by Mrs. Ernest Hobe.

A style show of funny hats, arranged by the Naomi circle, with Mrs. Walter Yarian and Mrs. John Theiss in charge, afforded a lot of merriment.

Members of the Salemqueers, high school dramatic club, highlighted the program with a humorous skit entitled, "The Shock of My Life."

In the cast were Joan Shepard, Jerry Rice, Jackie Kuntzman, Bernedine Fowler, Don Silver and Don Bishop.

Irene Weeks, dramatic coach, was in charge. Charles Ward, student director, was assisted by Marge Lutsch, Pete Monteleone and Gene Dean.

Rev. John Bauman, pastor, gave a brief talk.

Potted plants were presented Mrs. C. O. Schaeffer, oldest mother; Mrs. Walter Schneider, youngest mother; and Mrs. Fred Untch, who had three daughters at the banquet.

Three families were represented by four generations.

Mrs. John Pauline was the general chairman, assisted by Mrs. Mike Bender, Jr., Mrs. Ralph Gang and Mrs. Vincent Moore.

Mrs. Mike Bender, Jr., was in charge of decorations. A group of men from the church served the dinner.

The organization plans to give a Father-Son banquet in June, the day to be announced later.

Post-Nuptial Shower Honors Mrs. Shasteen

Mrs. Gerald J. Shasteen (Phyllis Cozad) was honored at a post-nuptial shower given for her by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Charles P. Cozad and her sister, Mrs. Walter Miller, Thursday evening in her home on Park ave.

The gifts were at the end of ribbons of pastel shades, which cascaded from a suspended umbrella also decorated.

Traveling bingo prizes were awarded Mrs. William Hinchliffe, Mrs. Newton Timbrook and Mrs. Shasteen, Sr.

Twenty-two were served lunch by the hostesses, assisted by Mrs. C. W. Cozad, mother of the recent bride.

Club Has Party

A theater party was enjoyed by the Launi club Thursday evening. Lunch was served by Irene Kovach, with a special prize going to Anne Kurek.

The club will meet May 20 with Anne Kurek of 590 Cherry st.

Mrs. and Mrs. Charles Wildorf of the Damascus rd., have been ill for several weeks.

Don't Worry If Baby Sucks Thumb, Sasses

(By Associated Press) CLEVELAND, May 8 — Don't worry, says a mental hygiene expert, if your baby sucks his thumb or later on shows an aggressive attitude toward you.

Dr. Luther E. Woodward, author and field consultant for the national committee for mental hygiene, made these observations yesterday in an address here:

"Baby's sucking his thumb never did anyone any organic damage. Society says it is all right for a child to explore and be curious—but not about the facts of life. Society says it is health for a child to have spunk and to express his aggressiveness—but not against his parents."

"This social pattern is bunk. Parents should let children be hostile and make little of such incidents. A child is hostile before he can clench a fist. So it is perfectly safe for parents to make light of early aggressions by the baby."

Dr. Woodward, author of "Better Ways of Growing Up," spoke before the Family Service association.

Military Academy Tests In District On June 12

Congressman Earl R. Lewis announced today that the competitive examination, which he has asked the United States Civil Service commission to hold for the selection of boys to be appointed to the Naval and Military academies, has been set for Monday, July 12. The exam will be held at Steubenville.

All boys who are residents of the 18th Ohio Congressional district, (Carroll, Columbiana, Jefferson, Harrison, and Belmont counties) and who are within the age limits are eligible. Age requirements are 17 to 21 years on April 1 for Annapolis; 18 to 22 years on date of entrance for West Point; extended two years at both schools for boys who have served honorably one year or more in the armed forces.

Congressman Lewis will forward application blanks.

Prove Amputees Can Lead Normal Lives

CLEVELAND—Twenty-five young men who once thought they might be incapacitated for life can prove that missing arms and legs need be no bar to normal living.

Using artificial limbs, they performed surely, if a little stiffly, in a "sports roundup" during the interim session of the American Medical Association here.

With one exception, the amputees were members of Possibilities Unlimited, Inc. The exception was Donald Kerr of New Orleans, a vocational consultant who sparked the show.

Kerr, whose left leg is amputated above the knee, glided gracefully around the floor with Cleveland's roller skating champion, a non-handicapped 18-year-old girl.

Later, he deftly returned the smashing forehand drives of Ken Quigley, Ohio's amateur badminton champion.

Finally, he put on the gloves with Leonard Jones, another leg amputee, in a boxing exhibition marked by good footwork.

Other amputees gave poised performances of weight lifting, ping pong, golf, fly casting and bowling. Five of them, one with both legs amputated below the knee, paired off with Arthur Murray girls for an exhibition of fox trot, rumba and jitterbug dancing.

Dr. Henry H. Kessler, consultant to the Federal Security's Agency of Vocational Rehabilitation, said: "I think these men have proved they can live normal lives."

Second Guessing

DEPARTMENT OF CONJECTURE

Why did Chuck Mather, ex-Leetonia and Hamilton coach, decide to go to Massillon as athletic director and football coach?

That's a question that has crossed many a sport fan's mind within the past few days and it has local interest for the simple reason that hundreds of football followers in this area knew Mather very well when he was at Leetonia.

There are a number of reasons why people ask this question.

Most prominent include:

Hamilton is more than twice the size of Massillon and, like the capital of football for Ohio, has only one public school. Consequently it's believed by some that Mather would have better material, year-in and year-out, than he will have at Massillon.

Hamilton was determined to keep Mather there. They went so far as to offer him a year contract within $500 a year of what Massillon offered. And he was head man there—athletic director, football coach—and could practically pick his own assistants.

He had built up a tremendous reputation as a coach at Hamilton and had gained the respect of the Southern Ohio Coaches association to such an extent that they had picked him at No. 1 man in that section of the state last year. He ranked No. 2, under Harry Stroh of Barboursville, on a statewide poll by the Associated Press.

Why then, with all that success and security, would Mather want the Massillon job?

This writer asked Mather those very questions at the Cleveland Browns clinic last week.

His replies, though not direct quotations revealed the following reasons:

Mather is completely "sold" on Massillon's Junior High system—the same system that Paul Brown, now of the Cleveland Browns and generally conceded to be the best in the nation's football today—and is anxious to try his own type of football under it.

Chuck is a great follower of Paul Brown. In fact he admits that he had hoped to pattern Hamilton after Brown's original Massillon system and had gone a considerable way in accomplishing that.

Massillon's football name is made. It now requires merely maintenance and possible improvement. Mather considers the offer at Massillon a challenge to his ability and he is determined to meet the challenge.

He fully realizes that in skipping from Hamilton, where he manufactured his own "pressure," to a place like Tigertown, where the "pressure" is, has and always will be terrific, he is sticking his reputation and neck away out.

He likes that angle and hopes to overcome it.

Then, of course, there's money. Mather signed for $5,500 the first year and $5,800 the second, a bracket which will rank him among the highest paid high school coaches in the state.

And then there's the angle that at Massillon football grows up in the hundreds of thousands of dollars annually with attendances averaging second only to Ohio State in Ohio. At Hamilton a 10,000 person crowd was "big." That means, of course, more money for equipment and more fans to watch your team in action.

Coaches, though not so nearly normal in other ways, are after all human about most things. They like people to be watching their wares at work. And they like the money to buy the things they need to accomplish their goals.

So Mather's acceptance of a "dangerous" pressure job isn't so out-of-line when you look at it from the angle of a football coach. It's a pure and simple challenge and he wants to attempt to meet it!

ODDS AND ENDS

Frank "Toar" Julian, Salem wrestler who works under the name of Frank Maxem, recently had a chance at the world's title in a bout with Bronco Nagurski, the former professional football star. . . . No word has arrived as to how Frank came out.

Horrible weather this week has marred several of the games at the Salem A. C. field and has definitely put the crimps in self activities at the Salem Golf club, much to Andy Moseley's regret. . . . Andy has little faith in northern weather any longer. It's rained five out of seven days he's been back at the Salem club as pro.

Bob Lemon Forcing Feller Into Back Seat

LOCKE BURNS UP OVER PGA, BURNS UP GOODALL PLAY

Steps Into Second As End Nears and Takes Crack At P. G. A. Head

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., May 8.—Bobby Locke, greatest golfer ever to come out of South Africa, is hitting each shot even a little crispier than usual in the Goodall Round Robin tournament here.

Bobby is sore. He has been banned from playing in the professional Golfers' Association championship this summer at St. Louis. Here in the Goodall, he has 14 of this country's top professionals to work on, and what's more natural than a burning desire to demonstrate that he is papa.

Locke has become fast friends with most top American pros since he arrived here last year. But he feels he has been given a fast shuffle by George Snelberger, the PGA tournament chairman.

He didn't hesitate to express his feelings after he had shot his second straight 69 over the par 72 course in yesterday's second round of the Goodall event. This gave him a "plus" score of 23, only one behind the leader, Herman Banion, of White Plains, N. Y.

The Goodall is played on a match-play basis. In each of five rounds, each contestant plays hole-by-hole against the three others in his foursome.

"Snelberger has barred me from the PGA championship," Locke said, "because he says I have been over here so long I no longer am a visitor. The fact remains that I am here on a visitor's visa, which I can get extended. In my opinion, Snelberger simply is not capable of conducting a business as big as the PGA."

Two more rounds of the Goodall were scheduled today, with the fifth and final 18-hole test tomorrow.

As they went into today's two rounds, the score stood thus: Barion, plus 24; Locke, plus 23; Bob Hamilton, plus 20. Ben Hogan was plus 12 and Lloyd Mangrum was plus 11. Henry Cotton, the 41-year-old British stylist was sixth at plus 9, and the other 10 in the select company were nowhere.

The Columbiana county track meet will be held at East Palestine beginning with preliminaries at 4 p. m. Monday, Fred Cope was notified today.

The meet, originally to be held at Palestine last night, was postponed because of rain Friday. Cope, because of the county meet's postponement, will not send an entry to the Canton McKinley relays at Canton today, he said.

CHARLES BRINGS BOXING BACK TO CHICAGO FRIDAY

Knocks Out Violent Ray In Quick Fashion In Bout Last Night

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, May 8.—Bardolph Charles, brought professional boxing back to Chicago stadium after a 77-day hiatus last night and the ranking challenger for Gus Lesnevich's light heavyweight title did it with a flourish.

Charles knocked out Elmer (Violent) Ray, Hastings, Fla., in the ninth round of their scheduled 10-round battle. The Oklaan, out-weighted 17 pounds, floored Ray with a right to the chin two minutes and 43 seconds after the round opened.

Charles weighed 175 pounds to 192 for his opponent.

The bout was the first professional match in Chicago stadium since Sam Baroudi, Akron, O., light-heavyweight, died without regaining consciousness six hours after being knocked out by Charles last February.

The card drew 9,319 spectators and a $42,703 gate.

Charles pledged $5,000 of his purse to Baroudi's parents while promoters, Irving Schenwald, Jack Begun and Jack Hurley also donated another $5,000. A check for $10,000 was presented to Baroudi's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Crandall.

SOFTBALL PLAY TO OPEN MONDAY AT WEST END PARK

Diner Vs. Frost Motor First Game On Slate Plan All Play at New Park

A 14-team city softball league will get under way Monday evening at West End park, with the defending champion Diner ball club locking horns with Frost Motors, a new entry at 5:45.

Three other games will round out the first night's card under the lights.

The schedule was drawn up Friday night at a meeting of the league's executive committee, composed of Commissioner Joe Reese, Ray Reasbeck and Jim Primm.

The group decided to hold all league games at West End, using the Centennial park diamond only to play off rained out games. In that manner it is believed it will be able to keep up with an established schedule.

Four games will be played on Mondays and Thursdays, and three on Tuesdays and Fridays. Games will start at 5:45, 7, 8 and 9 p. m. Each team will play twice each week.

Class B teams will use the south diamond at Centennial park.

The board clarified a rule limiting players from within a five mile radius of Salem to include men from Damascus, Greenford, Leetonia, Washingtonville and Winona, in accordance with past custom.

Teams were reminded that no changes or additions in team personnel may be made until June 15. Following that date teams may trade or add players to their rosters until July 15.

The schedule:

| MONDAY NIGHT |
|----------------------------------|
| 5:45—Diner vs Frost Motors |
| 7:00—Amvets vs Salem China |
| 8:00—Mullins vs Bliss |
| 9:00—Dening vs Recreation |
| TUESDAY NIGHT |
| 5:45—Sanitary vs Saxons |
| 7:00—V. P. W. vs Washingtonville |
| 8:00—Democrats vs Elec. Furnace |

Paul Brown A Figure In Any Talk of Ohio State

This is the second of two articles dealing with the Ohio State university football situation.

BY JOHN BARRINGTON
COLUMBUS, May 8.—For a gentleman who has barely reached the life-beginning at 40 age bracket, Paul E. Brown has enjoyed unusual success at his chosen profession.

Few will gainsay that the highly personable wizard who now directs the Cleveland Pro Browns' football fortunes is one of the all time greats of grid coaching.

Brown, himself, is said to feel that his personal ambition has been thwarted only once in a lifetime of connection with the sport.

That was during the 1941-42 period, when as head coach at Ohio State, he locked horns with the Bucks' shrewd old athletic director, L. W. St. John.

Brown was determined to exercise unlimited authority over Buck football policy and he had frank hopes of succeeding St. John when the latter's pending retirement took effect.

It was inevitable that such ideas would cause turmoil in the career regime "the saint" had maintained for so many years.

After the 1941 season, Brown went into the service and became connected with the Navy's athletic program at Great Lakes. Shortly thereafter, he accepted an offer by Mickey McBride of the Cleveland All-American conference team to become coach and general manager.

Brown's already ruffled feathers certainly were not smoothed by subsequent remarks of St. John's, which were tactless to say the least.

Most of the current belief that Brown would chuck his excellent Cleveland setup to return to Ohio State as combined coach-athletic director is predicted on the supposition that he would like to square accounts.

Brown disciples, many of them men of great influence on the Buckeye athletic scene, already are conducting a carefully planned campaign to bring him back.

He, himself, is said to regret that the situation has been built up to proportions of a major feud. However, he has never convinced the public that he would not be amenable to a proper OSU offer.

Fuel has been added by Brown's policy of signing Ohio State's to his pro eleven. The stream of players has included Dante Lavelli, Lou Groza, Lin Houston, Tony Adams, Bob Gaudio, Ollie Cline, Dean Sensenbagger and Bob Brugge. All had college eligibility remaining, although their original classes had graduated.

Brown insists that he is merely trying to build the strongest possible Cleveland team. Ohio State officials feel that he is signing athletes to build a team.

Whether Brown actually would return on his own terms is something that only the wily grid genius knows. Possibly he is surfeited with success and glory, perhaps he does have enough money laid by to return to a less remunerative campus position.

Whatever the case maybe, the university athletic situation at present is the loser in a clash of personal feeling between its present administrators and Brown.

The best thing that could happen would be the intervention of some diplomatic soul who could persuade the two factions to bury the hatchet and meet in a large area of mutual benefit.

Certainly there is much for the university to gain in an harmonious relationship with the head of one of the most powerful professional organizations in the land.

By the same token, Brown's stature would be increased with the laying aside of personal rancor and ambition.

Hurls 8-0 Shutout Over Senators to Bring Tribe Into Tie For 2nd Place

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob Lemon is forcing Bobby Feller to take a back seat in the Cleveland wigwag. The converted infielder-outfielder with three wins in four starts—tops rapid Robert in wins, complete games and even in strikeouts.

You probably could get at least 2 to 1 that Feller will wind up the season with more of each than Lemon, who is starting his second season as a full fledged pitcher. Lemon, however, is not to be shrugged off as a spring premonition.

Lemon banged around the Indians' minor league farms for five years as a third baseman. When he came back from the Navy in 1946, Manager Lou Boudreau shifted him from third to center field.

He was not a success, hitting .180 in 89 games. Then Boudreau, impressed by his strong arm, sent him to the bullpen. In 32 games he won four and lost five.

It looked as though Lemon was to be just another relief man last year until July 31 when Boudreau, in a moment of desperation, gave him a starting chance. He responded with a win and reeled off 10 in the last half of the season for a fine 11-5 record. Experts predicted a great future.

Last night Lemon shut out Washington with four hits, 8-0, to lift the Tribe into second place, a half game behind Philadelphia.

While Lemon has been writing his own success story, Feller has been knocked out of the box in his last two starts. Before that he threw a two-hit shutout and ran a string of 17 consecutive scoreless innings.

In addition to his pitching, Lemon is hitting .533 with eight hits in 15 at bats, including two home runs. Cleveland-Washington was the only game in the American league yesterday. Rain washed out the Detroit at New York, Chicago at Philadelphia and St. Louis at Boston dates. It also forced postponement of the New York at Pittsburgh night game in the National.

Cincinnati suffered a severe blow when it lost the services of Ewell Blackwell, for an indefinite period. The Reds' elongated pitching ace injured his right shoulder and left the ball game in the sixth inning. An X-ray examination today will determine the extent of the injury.

Blackwell, who has failed to go the route in four of his five starts, was charged with the loss as Boston's Bill Voiselle eked out a 4-3 edge for his third straight win.

Brooklyn had use of 14 walks by Chicago pitchers to outlast the Cubs, 9-5 in a game that dragged through three hours and 36 minutes. Preston Ward, Dodger rookie first baseman, actually won the game with a triple off Relfefer Ralph Hamner after Hamner had loaded the bases with three bases in the sixth.

The St. Louis Cardinals subdued the Philadelphia Phils, 7-4, in a night game for Howie Pollet's first win in three starts. Dutch Leonard, the Phils' top pitcher, was injured when struck by a line drive off the bat of Red Schoendienst in the third inning. He was forced to leave the game but was not believed seriously hurt.

Beagle Hounds Capture International Honors

Beagle hounds owned by two Salem men placed high in the international field trials held recently in Columbus, official records disclosed today.

Second place in the futurity (two-year-old) class was won by Truetone Trigger owned by Dick Lawrence of Jennings ave., while Magical Dilly, a two-year-old bitch owned by Gene Yarwood of Second st., won second in that classification.

The awards are coveted since 370 hounds were entered in the international event.

Truetone Dandy, another Beagle owned by Lawrence, completed his field championship in 1946. Twenty pups he has produced placed in derby trials this spring.

Hollywood, Calif.—Jackie Wilson, 14½, Los Angeles, outpointed Earl Turner, 150, Oakland, Calif. 10.

The costs we bear and the threats we face today are the consequences of years and years of appeasing Russia.
Sen. Kenneth Wherry (R) of Nebraska.

It isn't possible to think that mistrust between peoples can be liquidated at once. It is not possible to do that quickly.
—Premier Josef Stalin, addressing Finnish leaders.

We are suicidal fools if we do not root out and destroy any treason at home which may dream of bringing world revolution to the United States.
—Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R) of Michigan.

far have been fruitless. Neither side has budged and close observers felt that President Truman might seize the country's entire rail system Monday if no peace plan is sighted by then.

With the industry under federal control the government could apply for a court injunction to stop the threatened strike. It did that in 1946 to stop a coal strike called by John L. Lewis.

But seizure still would leave Truman with the problem of an unsettled labor dispute. That would have to be solved before the industry could be turned back to its owners.

May Call Board
On this score, there was a possibility that if the seizure occurs Truman might call back a fact-finding board headed by William E. Leiserson to "clarify" its recent report.

The board recommended a 15 1/2 cent hourly pay boost for the three unions involved—the Brotherhoods of Locomotive Engineers, Firemen and Enginemen, and Switchmen.

That was the same pay raise accepted last fall by 17 other rail brotherhoods but the three refused it as inadequate.

However, a number of proposed changes in rail operating rules de-
